SUMMARY

I am a front-end web developer and creative with diverse experience in language, landscaping, design and an eye for detail. I have a degree in Asian Studies where I discovered my passion for learning new languages. After returning from two years of living in Wuhan, China as an English Teacher, I devoted myself to developing tech skills. I love having creative outlets and learning new technologies! So far in my studies of coding, I've created a few projects using Angular and Web APIs. This helped me develop familiarity with Agile practices, the command line, responsive design, and scalable functionality. I've also used my passion for languages to build my knowledge of programming languages. Because of my experience in landscaping, I would love to design stunning software to satisfy customers' aesthetic desires and preferences.
