SUMMARY

I am a student of languages with a professional background in education with a focus in teaching English. After graduating university, I lived in Wuhan, China for two years where I studied Mandarin, Chinese. The COVID-19 pandemic has led to an opportunity for me to devote time to an interest I have always wanted to explore deeper - software development. During my studies of programming, I was able to use my passion for learning languages to come to a deep understanding of development tools such as HTML5, CSS, Javascript, and Angular.js. While I expand on these skills and learn more about software development, I would love to use my current knowledge to explore creating fun, personal projects and work as a front-end developer.
